Methodist Episcopal Church News.

Palm Sunday was observed with appropriate services. In the morning the pastor spoke on "Crowned, Then Crucified". The music was in harmony with the spirit of the occasion. A large congregation was present. The auditorium was very tastefully decorated with palms, and foliage plants, under the direction of the East Side Ladies Aid society, the palms being graciously furnished by the Scott Green House, and for which the congregation are very grateful. In the evening the theme of the sermon was "The Soldier's Crime," and dwelt on the treatment of the Christ at the hands of the soldiers who mocked Him and scourged Him, the history suggesting the thought that the spirit of the soldiers is not altogether unknown in this day. There was a good congregation present.

Wednesday evening the opportunity will be given the citizens to hear Miss Bertha Creek, of India, who will speak on the customs and manners, the religion and civilization of the people of India, where she has been as a representative of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal church. The admission is free, but an offering will be taken at the close of the address. The hour is seven thirty.

Next Sunday is Easter and the day will be fittingly observed. Special arrangements have been made for this occasion. The music, the decoration and the entire day's services will be of the character of the season. In the morning the Sunday school will meet at 10 o'clock as usual, and the preaching service at 11 o'clock. At this service the Primary Department of the school will sing the introductory hymn, "Good Morning." The sermon theme will be "The Deserted Grave." In the evening the Sunday School will present an Easter program entitled "The Easter Message." This service will be held at half past seven o'clock.

The Junior League will entertain the "Mothers" at their service on Thursday afternoon, from three to five o'clock. The regular devotional service will be followed by a program and this with a social time. All mothers of the children connected with the League are most cordially invited.

The monthly business session of the Official Board will be held at the close of the mid-week worship on Thursday evening. Every member is requested to be present.

Lecture on Health Matters.

Dr. H. A. Tomlinson, superintendent of the state hospital for the insane at St. Peter, Minn., will deliver a lecture in this city on the evening of April 11th at the Congregational church, choosing as his subject "Some of the Common Problems in Public Health." The doctor has the reputation of being a good speaker and a man well informed, and his lecture should be heard by everyone. As it is free there is no reason why there should not be a big turnout as the subject is one that is of vital importance to all.

It might be stated that it was thru the efforts of Dr. O. T. Hengen of this city that we were able to secure one of these lectures, as most of them will be delivered in larger cities, but as the doctor is one of the counselors of the state medical society he saw that one of the lectures was delivered here.

Beall Wins in the West.

Seattle, Wash., March 28.—Fred Beall of Wisconsin, the light heavy weight champion wrestler, won his match with Frank Coleman of Omaha last night by superior strength, the Nebraska apparently wearing himself out. Beall won the first fall in 67 minutes with a front half-nelson and arm lock. In the second bout, which lasted 29 minutes Beall won with an arm and neck lock.

Portland, Ore., March 30.—John Berg quit in his match with Fred Beall here Friday night for the light heavy-weight championship of the world after one hour and ten minutes of gruelling wrestling without a fall.

Beall had got a full nelson on Berg and almost had the latter's shoulders pinned to the mat when Beall claimed that Berg thrust his thumb into his left eye.

Beall punched at Berg, whereupon the police ordered the contestants out of the ring. There were protests from the spectators and finally the police let the match go on.

MERCHANTS TO VISIT GRAND RAPIDS

The Merchants and Manufacturers Association of Milwaukee, embracing in its membership over one thousand of the leading business men of the state metropolis, has included Grand Rapids in the itinerary for its Twelfth Annual Trade Excursion, which will leave Milwaukee, Monday, June 3, and return Sunday, June 9.

The tour this year will be a mid Wisconsin affair, embracing over thirty of the leading cities and towns of the State, from Burlington on the south to Hurley and Ashland on the north. The tour will be wholly within the boundaries of the state except that the party will cross the Montreal River at Hurley and visit the city of Ironwood, in Gogebie County, Michigan.

One hundred leading business men of Milwaukee will make the trip, traveling on the fastest private train that has ever been run through Wisconsin, fully vestibuled and electric lighted, with three or four sleepers, two diners, a buffet car, a baggage car, a tourist sleeper for the train crew and the officers' car of the roads over which it travels. The train will have its own telephone exchange, and the Wisconsin Telephone Company will furnish connections with the local exchange in every town visited.

The men who will make up this party will include heads of manufacturing establishments, jobbing houses and financial institutions, the idea of the annual trade excursion being to cement more closely the business and personal relations between merchants of the cities visited and those of Milwaukee.

The members of the party desire to learn of the local industries and advantages of the towns visited, as well as to ascertain the possibilities of increasing their own trade. The leading Milwaukee papers will have representatives on the train, who will write up each town visited on the trip, giving a good opportunity for local advertising. It is the desire of the excursionists to meet their old customers and make new ones; to meet the business men and leading citizens of each place visited. They do not expect any formal entertainment but will appreciate the opportunity to see what the thriving Wisconsin cities and villages on the itinerary have to offer which will be of interest to other citizens of the Badger State.

Good Friday Service.

Mrs. I. P. Witter, musical director in the Episcopal church, has been rehearsing the choir of that institution for some time past on a sacred cantata entitled "Olivet to Calvary" which will be rendered at the church on the evening of Good Friday, April 6th. The choir will be composed of the following:

Soprano—Mrs. E. B. Redford.
Mrs. A. J. Voss, Mrs. P. A. Stamm, Mrs. W. C. McGlynn, Misses Edith Weeks, Katherine Gibson, Ella Merriman, Katherine Steele and Mildred MacKinnon.

Altos—Mrs. Geo. W. Purnell, Miss Edith Weeks.
Tenors—Messrs. Louis Reichel, A. L. Voss and Glen Clark.

Basses—Messrs. F. A. Stamm, M. B. Milne, Reginald MacKinnon and C. A. Normington.

Soloists—Mr. F. W. Carberry, tenor; Mr. Richard S. Davis, baritone.

Miss Helen M. Gilkey, pianist; Mrs. I. P. Witter, organist and director.

Wisconsin Income Tax Literature at Library.
As the time approaches for the assessment of the new income tax, many doubtless, would be glad to know more about it. The public library has some literature on the subject which may be found helpful.

The Income Tax by Seligman explains the principles of income taxation generally and gives the history both in this country and abroad.

A copy of the Wisconsin Income Tax Law with an explanation by the governor, of course, covers all the points of the Wisconsin law.

An article in the Quarterly Journal of Economics by Kenneth Kent Kennan on the Wisconsin Income Tax gives its history and gives a condensed summary of the principal features of the law, including deductions and exemptions, rates, method of assessing and collecting and the apportionment of its revenue.

Plant Sold at Auction.

The plant of the Vesper Malleable Iron & Castings Company at Vesper was sold at auction on Thursday of last week, there being but one bidder, C. B. Goldworthy of Vesper, whose bid was one dollar. Mr. Goldworthy held a second mortgage on the plant.

This plant has passed thru various vicissitudes from a financial standpoint, and there was no time during its existence that it was a paying venture, those who knew claiming that several of those connected with it drawing large salaries without rendering any services in return.

The plant comprises several large brick buildings, well constructed, that could apparently be made good use of if properly handled.

Death of John Murgatroyd.
John Murgatroyd, one of the old settlers of Vesper, died very suddenly on Sunday from heart failure.

Deceased was a veteran of the Civil war, having been a member of Co. H, First regiment, heavy artillery.

The remains were interred in this city on Tuesday, the services at the grave being conducted by the local G. A. R. Post, of which organization he was a member.

Mr. Murgatroyd was a man well liked by all who knew him, and his death was a great surprise to his many friends, he having been in good health and was a young appearing man for his years.

Fable of the Merchant Who Wasn't Satisfied Until He Went to Farming.

Once upon a Time there was a cheerful idiot who was engaged in the mercantile business. He wasn't the biggest merchant in the country, but by careful attention to business and hard work he had managed to lay by enough of the fifty so that he could have stood quite a spell of rainy weather without having the poor house stare him out of countenance.

Then he read some dope about the farmer being the most independent man on earth, and mornings while the boy was sweeping out the store he used to get his feet up on the stove and have a pipe dream about farm life.

He could see himself driving to town in his buzz wagon in the dewy morn with a load of produce, and later depositing the coin in the local bank. Then he would visit the boys around town for a time, eling back home and sit on the fence and watch the corn and potatoes grow.

Then if there was anything doing in town in the evening he could bring the family in. It was an ideal life with not much to do but enjoy life and draw the money.

The only thing that stuck in his crop was to decide just what branch of agriculture to break into. If he went into potatoes exclusively it might be best to buy forty acres, but of course he could raise eleven and make a good income from five acres.

There were so many things that he had read about that it was hard to decide just which one he did want. But he had the bug all right, and there was no getting away from it, and at last he said out and bought a farm.

It was a nice little patch of ground of about 100 Acres, just suited for his needs, and he had a cherry feeling and wouldn't have traded his domain for that of a king when he walked over his property the first time.

Things didn't come out just the way he had figured them the first year, owing to the fact that it was a pretty wet year and the crops didn't do well on the low land, and the weeds seemed to grow faster than the crops. One of his boys got a job in town that fall and refused to farm it any longer.

The next year it was pretty dry and the things he had planted on the high land failed to make good. The weeds, however, continued to grow in a luxuriant manner on both the high and low land. His corn looked as if it had liver trouble and there wasn't enough ears on the stalks so that he got his seed back. From come early that year also. One of the girls graduated from school and took to teaching that fall, as she had scored on the back-to-the-soil dope also.

Mrs. Merchant wasn't spending as much time in town as he had figured on doing before he went to farming. He found that after he had greeted Old Sol at four o'clock in the morning, slopped the pigs, wheedled old Bridgie out of her six quarts of milk, fed the calves, looked after the horses, and then galloped around a forty acre plot in pursuit of a corn plow for about sixteen hours, with an occasional intermission for meals, he was about ready to hit the hay, and see if he couldn't get the kinks out of his back in time to resume hostilities the next morning.

When the other boys left home the following spring just as the hard straw was coming on, it was the last straw that broke the camel's back, for the old man was becoming quite a camel, he having been gone seven days without a drink; that is, without anything worth cherishing to drink that could be drawn from the well back of the house.

He sold the farm for about a thousand dollars less than he paid for it and got back into the mercantile business where he belonged, a poorer and a much wiser man.

Moral—Our job may be just as good as the other fellow's, only we don't know it. He has troubles that we never dreamed of.

Ames-Podawiltz.

Miss Claribelle Ames of this city, and Mr. Arthur Podawiltz of Eau Claire, were married at 10:30 o'clock this morning at the home of the bride's parents, Rev. Fred Staff of the Congregational church performing the ceremony.

Misses Pauline Harrington and Mildred MacKinnon acted as ribbon girls, there being no other attendants. The bride was attired in a French white crepe suit and lace bouquet.

After the ceremony a four course luncheon was served and the happy young couple left on the noon train on a wedding tour, after which they will make their home at Eau Claire.

Both of the contracting parties are well and favorably known here, the bride being the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Ames, and is a most estimable young lady, while the groom was reared here and made his home in the city until he went to Eau Claire about a year ago to engage in the automobile business.

They both have many friends here to wish them a happy journey thru life, and the Tribune unites with these in extending the warmest of congratulations.

Teachers Institute Saturday.
A large attendance is expected at the teachers' institute Saturday at the County Normal building. At Pittsville and at Marshfield there has been perfect attendance. This is a great record, and this end of the county should finish the season with a good showing.

DOCTORS IN UNITED STATES.

To one who observes the considerable number of physicians signs in the average city or large town the report of the last census that there are in the United States only 130,000 physicians, including osteopaths, pathologists, hydropaths and doctors of every description, may come as a revelation and a surprise. The additional information, afforded by the census, that this country has only one doctor to every 650 of its population is not likely to relieve the observer's wonderment until he reflects that a physician to every 650 people is, after all, a fairly liberal allowance to the public health, says the Manchester Union. The figures, of course, represent the average of communities having fewer doctors in proportion to their population and some having more. Manchester, for instance, on the basis of the census figures, would have 108 or 109 physicians. The city directory gives 58. The census report on the matter is not incredible, yet a person traveling along the streets of almost any New England city and remarking the numerous doctors' "signings" would have been almost certain to estimate the percentage of doctors higher than that given by the census.

Surprise is frequently expressed because there are so many school children who are not scholars, but there is a substantial reason for it. In Kansas very few of a short list of schools and colleges students. Now these pupils are not taught the way their fathers and mothers were, says the Boston Globe. Under the old public school system there were spelling books in the schools and the pupils took pride in excelling. Under the new system children between the ages of eight and twelve can acquire quite a large vocabulary by the practice of spelling words of several syllables. The rising generation is full of poor spellers, but it is not their fault, for little attention is paid to that accomplishment. It would be well for all teachers to put their pupils through a course of spelling every few days, and also to teach them to read aloud. Reading, writing and spelling should go hand in hand. Those lacking these accomplishments are not far removed from the illiterate class.

George Wehler, director of physical education at the University of Wisconsin, has instituted rest classes for digitory girls whose nervous systems "go to pieces" under the fatigue following undue exertion. In a report to the United States Bureau of Education he says: We do not go on the theory that the gymnasium is good for every one, and, therefore, every one must take gymnastics. The purpose of these classes is rest is to teach girls who are restless from the performance of tasks that ought not to produce fatigue how to acquire control over their own nervous systems. Putting every one—girls as well as boys—through a stiff regimen of gymnasium work has had results in many instances, and is a thing to be avoided. If the director of physical education in the University of Wisconsin makes allowance for constitutional differences students not built to endure overstrain will have reason to thank the good fortune which made him arbiter of their physical destinies.

San Francisco custom house officials have just made the first arrest ever recorded at that port for the offense of smuggling diamonds—and the diamonds in the case were valued at only $477.50. When the New York custom house looks at the San Francisco custom house it will have to laugh.

The assertion that civility has supplanted the oyster as the appetizing opening of a banquet menu may be premature. Local managers may prefer the Russian delicacy, but it will be well to hear from "the general" before taking everything for granted. American blue points on the half shell are very good.

82 DEAD IN MINE

JED, W. VA., SHAFT SCENE OF GAS EXPLOSION AND INSTANT DEATH.

ELEVEN ESCAPE THE BLAST

Thirty-Three Bodies Recovered—Rescue Cars Rushed to Town—Five Men Killed When Sawmill Boiler Explodes.

Bluefield, W. Va.—Eighty-two men were killed by a gas explosion in the Jed Coal and Coke company's mine at Jed, W. Va., six miles from here. Only eleven men escaped alive and one of these died within an hour after being brought to the surface. Thirty-three bodies have been recovered and the rescuers will have them out shortly.

When the explosion took place probably only the eleven men working at the foot of the shaft had a chance for their lives. They readily made their way up the cages which were not damaged.

Though some of the blades of the fan were shattered, they continued to operate, with the fortunate result that enough air was present to admit searching parties immediately.

Less than half an hour after the news of the explosion had been communicated to this place, relief measures were being taken. Oxygen bottles and other appliances were rushed from the plant of the United States Coal and Coke company, a United States Steel corporation mine near by; a government mine rescue car on route to Huntington, W. Va., was turned back on telegraph orders from Washington, and another car was started from Pittsburgh. The first car reached here shortly after noon. The exports immediately conceded that all in the mine were dead.

State mine inspectors promptly organized rescue parties and began the exploration of levels. As the gases were cleared out and they began searches of the lower levels they immediately began to come upon mangled bodies who had been killed almost instantly. Other mines near by sent experienced foremen to lead hundreds of volunteer rescuers who flocked to the scene as the news spread about the catastrophe.

The mine was inspected only recently and pronounced safe.

Forty-five men were killed and two others probably fatally injured when a boiler exploded in a sawmill operated by Bernals L. Hearn, near here.

The explosion is thought to have been caused by lack of water in the boiler. The mill was blown to pieces.

MAY END COAL STRIKE

President White of the United Mine Workers to Ask 5 per cent. Increase.

Cleveland, O.—John P. White, president of the United Mine Workers of America, and the district presidents are considering a possible solution of the threatened strike of the bituminous miners of western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois.

They purpose placing before the workers their own plan for the settlement except that for an increase in pay and that they ask for five per cent. instead of ten.

This compromise has not been decided upon definitely, but it was considered one loophole by which there would be no strike on April 1, a suspension of operations until new wage agreements could be effected.

The union officials are in doubt whether such a compromise would be approved at a referendum vote.

Members of the executive board and policy committee of the United Mine Workers of America are preparing to draw up recommendations for a referendum vote by the union.

The union officials say an agreeable adjustment of the bituminous dispute would have much influence in securing for the 175,000 anthracite miners a settlement of their differences.

SEND JUDGE SECOND BOMB

Package of Explosive Detected in Mails May Have Given Police a Clue.

New York.—Although it has become known that the police are in possession of a second bomb mailed to Judge Otto A. Rosalio of the court of general sessions, the trial judge in the Brandt case, detectives would not disclose what clues they are working to solve the mystery of the two attacks upon the life of the jurist.

The bomb, which was detected by the mail and kept intact, coupled with threatening letters sent to Delancy Nicoll, attorney for Mortimer E. Schiff in the case of Police E. Brandt, Schiff's former valet, are believed to have encouraged the police to renew efforts in running down the sender.

ROADS REFUSE RAISE

RAILWAYS REJECT DEMAND FOR AN ADVANCE.

Employers Say Charges Would Block Improvements Which Are Required by Law.

New York.—Fifty railroads comprising practically all the lines east of Chicago and north of the Norfolk and Western, refused to grant an increase in wages demanded by their locomotive engineers.

The conference committee of railroad managers which has had under consideration the request of the engineers made its reply, which, in substance is that the railroads are unable to bear the increased expense involved, "and find it evidently impossible to grant the request."

The engineers' demand, presented on January 22, was for an increase amounting to about 19 per cent. The railroads' refusal is based on the assertion that they are financially unable to bear the increased expense.

The reply was presented at a joint meeting of committees representing the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and 12 presidents of the engineering societies of the railroads.

The railroads point out that the proposed increase will amount to $7,553,792 annually. This increase, they say, would be equivalent to placing on the property a lien of $188,544,818 of 4 per cent. securities, which would have preference over first mortgage bonds, and to this extent would lessen the ability of the roads to make the improvements necessary to increase the efficiency of their service and to insure greater safety to the public and employees.

TAFT SWEEPS NEW YORK

President Victorious at the Primaries—Two Sets of Delegates Chosen at Indianapolis Meeting.

New York.—In the primaries held in New York state, former President Roosevelt carried three districts—the first (his own), embracing the counties of Nassau, Suffolk, and Westchester, and the second, embracing the counties of Rockland and Dutchess, controlled by National Committee man Ward. Roosevelt also has a delegate from Brooklyn, William A. Pradergast, who as a known Roosevelt man, was left on the regular ticket.

President Taft carried the Utica district, the home of Vice-President Sherman, where there was a fight. Roosevelt won only seven delegates out of ninety in the entire state.

The four delegates at large will be instructed for Taft.

Roosevelt men assert the primaries were improperly conducted, and will carry the matter to the national convention.

Indianapolis, Ind.—Two sets of delegates at large to the Republican national convention at Chicago were chosen here.

One quartet, elected in the vote for the convention of President Taft. The contesting delegation bears the Roosevelt stamp.

FARM TRAINING IN SCHOOLS

Move Toward Providing Such Education in Illinois Made at Conference at the University.

The conference was called by B. F. Harris, president of the Illinois Farmers' association and chairman of its committee on agriculture and vocational education.

In opening the session Mr. Harris said that while more than 40 per cent of the population of Illinois is in agriculture, that science is not taught in any of its country schools, except in a few instances, where it is done voluntarily. Many of the states require the teaching of agriculture. It is believed the conference will be a step in a report or bill for the legislature.

BURIAL OF THE MAINE AT SUNSET

HERE is the first photograph of one of the most impressive and pathetic events in the history of the American navy. The shattered hulk of the battleship Maine, having been raised from the muddy bottom of Havana harbor, was towed with funeral pomp to a point where soundings showed the ocean floor to be a hundred fathoms deep. There, while a great nation hushed for a moment its sounds of industry and mighty guns boomed forth salves, the once powerful war vessel sank again into the depths of the sea, its flag fluttering a farewell message to the world.

IN DECISIVE BATTLE

REBELS AND FEDERALS CLASH NEAR JIMINEZ AND HUNDREDS ARE KILLED.

REPORTS ARE CONFLICTING

President Madero of Mexico Declares He Has Crushed Revolutionists—One of His Generals Commits Suicide in Face of Defeat.

Mexico City, Mex.—A decisive battle between Mexican federal troops and rebels in the state of Jimenez has ended in a victory for the rebels. This is reported from many sources. These reports, however, are contradictory as to the result. The Mexican government has received an official dispatch to the effect that the rebels were routed and President Madero in an interview last night said it meant the breaking of the rebel cause. He said rebel losses in killed and wounded would reach 3,000 men.

A special dispatch originating at Toluca sent to El Imparcial at Mexico City and bearing evidence of being authentic, reported that the federal army had been defeated and that retreating government soldiers were being mobilized there.

Both reports contain the fact that Gen. Gonzales Salas, former minister of war, committed suicide after his defeat. He had been routed. In bad repute, he resigned his portfolio to take the field, hoping to rehabilitate himself in the eyes of his countrymen.

"The government troops have scored a decisive victory," latest reports state. "The rebels have been routed and captured accounting for 2,000 of their men. It has been a hard won victory, but it means the breaking of the rebel power. For the rash act of General Salas we have only regret. It was not necessary."

The dispatch upon which the president based his assertion declared that after the troops directly under the command of Salas were thrown into confusion when the rebels sent a dynamite laden locomotive into a troop train, Gen. Trucy Aubert executed a flank move and General Telles came upon the rebels in pursuit of Salas from the rear. Aubert opened fire from a hill and Salas came to his assistance with artillery, turning what was first reported a federal defeat into a government victory.

Rock Island, Ill.—One person was killed and thirteen wounded in a battle at Rock Island between the police and a mob of 5,000 enraged citizens. The state militia at Galesburg and Moline was ordered to the scene.

The riot was started by citizens inflamed by political speeches made at a mass meeting on the public square. The attacks were principally directed against Mayor Harry M. Schriver and Commissioner of Safety Archie Hart.

Arriving before the city hall the mob shouted for Schriver. The windows were smashed and the door battered. The police, armed with riot clubs and jeers, were the answers. The mob surged forward and again the guns were fired, this time in and three men fell.

Four more fell. One of these was Louis Orman, who was found to be dead.

Urges School Farms for State.

"The most profitable investment that a district could make would be to provide a school farm in connection with a centralized or graded school, where a competent teacher in agriculture could conduct a model farm."

This conclusion was reached by S. C. Little, director of the New York school of municipal research, in reporting to the Wisconsin board of public affairs upon the progress made in the study of the rural schools under taken under the auspices of the board.

He advised that, as a valuable help to the parents, simple but adequate systems of farm accounting should be taught.

Want Game Laws Changed.

It is practically certain that the next legislature will be asked to repeal that section of the game laws which transfers the unused portion of the income of the state fish and game department to the general fund.

Sportsmen from many parts of the state have written State Game Warden John A. Shotts expressing their disapproval of this law. They want all such receipts of the department most of which are hunting license fees, to be used in securing better and more efficient supervision.

WISCONSIN STATE NEWS

Earl Claire Benjamin L. Runkle, former undersecretary of Washington county, was arrested here charged with the murder of John W. Wicks, secretary of the Hayward Hines Lumber company, with criminal libel and attempted blackmail. It is alleged that Runkle tried to get money from Hines on the charge that his company set fire to their own plant at Washington in 1905.

Ashland.—Andrew Engstrom, the Ashland man arrested for the shooting of George Wright, who accidentally touched one of the wall traps alleged to have been set out among the Apostrophe Islands by Engstrom, was bound over to the circuit court for trial, after examination in the criminal court. Engstrom denied that the particular trap which caused Wright's injury belonged to him, but admitted that he had a large number of explosive traps set out among the islands and along the shore of Lake Superior for fifty miles. He declared he has killed in this way about seventy-five wolves during the last two years.

Waukesha.—That his son-in-law grasped him by the collar and forcibly ejected him from his own home when he ventured to suggest that a settlement of a beard bill of several months' standing would be equitable, is the complaint of E. H. Barker, who filed suit for divorce from his wife, Marie Barker, who is seventy years old, and a veteran of the Civil war, declared that his wife, who is forty and the mother of nine children by a former marriage, has mistreated him since he consented to transfer half of his property, consisting of a house and six lots, to a bank account of $500, to her name.

Condition.—The loggers through this section are closing one of the most successful logging seasons for many years. Conditions were ideal most of the winter, and the loggers are far above the average. Camps are closing up and every day outgoing trains are filled with loggers and bound happy lumberjacks. About 5,000 men are employed in the woods in this section during the logging season.

Ashland.—Indiana will meet soon at Odamah to protest against an order from Washington compelling the old law regarding all persons not full bloods who trade on the reservation to give a head of $10,000. It is said the law was adopted when all Indians on the reservation were full bloods and its enforcement now will put all Indians out of business.

Madison.—Fred E. Wetzel of Appleton, and Henry N. Culbertson of Green Bay, candidates for state senator in the Fourteenth district, filed nomination papers in the office of the secretary of state. Shawano.—Barred from their family mother by the leading flames which enveloped their farmhouse home, three little children of Gustav Zehner—Edward, aged four; Alice, aged three, and a baby girl, Emma, aged five months—were taken to death in the flames which destroyed the dwelling eight miles from this town. Mrs. Zehner, who had just returned from the village of Richmond, a half mile away, with the mail, entered a barn to care for the cattle. As she left the building on her way to the house, smoke and flames burst from an upper window, and before she could act the fire spread with astonishing rapidity. Rushing frantically to the front of the house, she entered in a desperate attempt to save the young of the family, but was driven back,

PART I. CHAPTER I.

It was a quiet night in the Tivoli. At the bar, which ranged along one side of the large, chinked room, leaned half a dozen men, two of whom were discussing the relative merits of spruce tea and lime juice as remedies for scurvy. They talked with an air of depression and with intervals of moosey silence. The other men were seated at the bar, in a row, against the opposite wall, were the gambling games. The crap table was deserted. One lone man was playing at the roulette. The roulette was not even spinning, and the gambler stood by the roulette, red-hot stove, talking with a young, dark-eyed woman, a comely of face and figure, who was known from Yukon to Fort Yukon as the Virgin. Three men sat in at stud poker, but they played with small chips and without enthusiasm, while there were no onlookers. On the other side of the room, which opened out at the rear, three couples were waiting idly to the strains of a violin and piano.

Circle City was not deserted, nor was money tight. The miners were in from Moosehead creek and the other diggings to the west, the summer washing had been good, and the men's pockets were heavy with dust and nuggets. The Klondike had not yet been discovered, nor had the miners of the Yukon learned the possibilities of deep digging and wood-finding. No work was done in the winter, and they made a practice of hibernating in the large camps like Circle City during the Arctic night. Time was heavy on their hands, their pockets were full of money, and the only social diversion to be found was in the saloons. Yet the Tivoli was practically deserted, and the Virgin, standing by the stove, yawned with unbecoming mouth and said to Charley Bates:

"If something don't happen soon, I'm goin' to bed. What's the matter with the camp, anyway? Everybody dead?" Bates did not even trouble to reply, but went on moodily rolling a cigarette. Dan MacDonald, pioneer salmonman and gambler on the upper Yukon, owner and proprietor of the Tivoli and all its games, wandered off to the bar and gripped his hand. "Anybody dead?" the Virgin asked him.

"Looks like it," was the answer. "Then it must be the whole camp," she said with an air of finality and with another yawn. MacDonald returned and nodded, and opened his mouth to speak, when the front door swung open and a man appeared in the light. He was not a huge French Canadian, stepped up to him from the bar and gripped his hand.

"Hello, Daylight!" was his greeting. "By Gar, you good for zero eyes!" "Hello, Louis, when did you all blow in?" returned the newcomer. "Come up and have a drink and tell us all about Bone creek. Why, doggone it, you all, shake again. What's that pardner of yours? I'm looking for him."

Another huge man detached himself from the bar to shake hands. Olaf Henderson and French Louis, partners together on Bone creek, were the two largest men in the country, and though they were but half a head taller than the newcomer, between them he was dwarfed completely. "Hello, Olaf," said the one called Daylight. "Tomorrow's my birthday. And you, too, Louis. Come up and drink, and I'll tell you all about it."

The arrival of the newcomer seemed to send a flood of warmth through the place. "It's burning Daylight," the Virgin cried, the first to recognize him as he came into the light. Charley Bates' tight features relaxed at the sight, and MacDonald went over and joined the three at the bar. With the advent of Burning Daylight the whole place suddenly became brighter and cheerier. The barkeepers were in voices were relaxed. Somebody laughed. And when the fiddler, perched into the front room, remarked to the pianist: "It's burning Daylight," the waltz time perceptibly quickened, and the dancers, catching the contagion, began to whirl about as if they really enjoyed it. It was known in the old-time that nothing so infectious when Burning Daylight was around.

He turned from the bar and saw the woman by the stove and the eager look of welcome she extended him. "Hello, Virgin, old girl," he called. "Hello, Charley. What's the matter with you all? Why wear faces that count? Come up, you all, and drink. Come up, you unbaked dead, an' name your poison. Come up, everybody. This is my night, and I'm going to ride it. Tomorrow I'm thirty, and then I'll be an old man. It's the last fling of youth. Are you all with me? Surge along, then. Surge along."

Surge along, then. Surge along. The waltz in the large room being finished, the three couples, followed by the fiddler and the pianist and heading for the bar, caught Daylight's eye. "Surge along, you all!" he cried. "Surge along and name it. This is my night, and it ain't a night that comes frequent. Surge up, you Sivasies and Salmoncrackers. It's my night, I tell you all!"

"A blamed mangy night," Charley Bates interpolated. "You're right, my son," Burning Daylight went on, gayly. "A mangy night, but it's my night, you see. I'm the many old he-wolf. Listen to me howl!" And howl he did, like a lone gray timber wolf, till the Virgin thrust her pretty fingers in her ears and shrieked. A minute later she was whirling away in his arms to the dancing floor, where, along with three other women and their partners, a rollicking Virginia reel was soon in progress. A few men knew Elam Harish by any other name than Burning Daylight, the name which had been given him in his early days in the land because of his habit of routing his comrades out of the saloons by the complaint that daylight was burning. Of the pioneers in that far Arctic wilderness, where all men were pioneers, he was reckoned among the oldest. Men like Al Mayo and Jack MacQuestion antedated him; but they had entered the land by the coast, while he had come from the Hudson Bay country to the east. He, however, had been the pioneer over the Chilcoot and Chilkoot passes. In the spring of 1883, twelve years before, a strapping eighteen, he had crossed over the Chilcoot with five comrades. In the fall he had pitched back with one. Four had perished by mischance in the bleak, uncharted vastness. And for twelve years Elam Harish had continued to grope for gold among the shadows of the Circle Heroes as seldom given to hero-worship, but among those of that land, young as he was, he was accounted an elder hero, in point of time he was before them, in point of deed he was beyond them.

Circle City was not deserted, nor was money tight. The miners were in from Moosehead creek and the other diggings to the west, the summer washing had been good, and the men's pockets were heavy with dust and nuggets. The Klondike had not yet been discovered, nor had the miners of the Yukon learned the possibilities of deep digging and wood-finding. No work was done in the winter, and they made a practice of hibernating in the large camps like Circle City during the Arctic night. Time was heavy on their hands, their pockets were full of money, and the only social diversion to be found was in the saloons. Yet the Tivoli was practically deserted, and the Virgin, standing by the stove, yawned with unbecoming mouth and said to Charley Bates:

"If something don't happen soon, I'm goin' to bed. What's the matter with the camp, anyway? Everybody dead?" Bates did not even trouble to reply, but went on moodily rolling a cigarette. Dan MacDonald, pioneer salmonman and gambler on the upper Yukon, owner and proprietor of the Tivoli and all its games, wandered off to the bar and gripped his hand. "Anybody dead?" the Virgin asked him.

"Looks like it," was the answer. "Then it must be the whole camp," she said with an air of finality and with another yawn. MacDonald returned and nodded, and opened his mouth to speak, when the front door swung open and a man appeared in the light. He was not a huge French Canadian, stepped up to him from the bar and gripped his hand.

"Hello, Daylight!" was his greeting. "By Gar, you good for zero eyes!" "Hello, Louis, when did you all blow in?" returned the newcomer. "Come up and have a drink and tell us all about Bone creek. Why, doggone it, you all, shake again. What's that pardner of yours? I'm looking for him."

Another huge man detached himself from the bar to shake hands. Olaf Henderson and French Louis, partners together on Bone creek, were the two largest men in the country, and though they were but half a head taller than the newcomer, between them he was dwarfed completely. "Hello, Olaf," said the one called Daylight. "Tomorrow's my birthday. And you, too, Louis. Come up and drink, and I'll tell you all about it."

The arrival of the newcomer seemed to send a flood of warmth through the place. "It's burning Daylight," the Virgin cried, the first to recognize him as he came into the light. Charley Bates' tight features relaxed at the sight, and MacDonald went over and joined the three at the bar. With the advent of Burning Daylight the whole place suddenly became brighter and cheerier. The barkeepers were in voices were relaxed. Somebody laughed. And when the fiddler, perched into the front room, remarked to the pianist: "It's burning Daylight," the waltz time perceptibly quickened, and the dancers, catching the contagion, began to whirl about as if they really enjoyed it. It was known in the old-time that nothing so infectious when Burning Daylight was around.

He was a striking figure of a man, of all the men in the Tivoli. Soft-tanned moccasins of moosehide, beaded in Indian designs, covered his feet. His trousers were ordinary overalls. His coat was made from a blanket. Long-gauntleted leather mittens, laced with wool, hung by his side. He was connected in the Yukon fashion, by a leather thong passed around the neck and across the shoulders. On his head was a fur cap, the ear-flaps raised, and the tying-cords dangling. His face, lean and slightly long, with the suggestion of hollows under the cheek bones, of hollows under the cheek bones, seemed almost like the face of a white man, older than thirty, and yet, smooth-shaven and without wrinkles, he was almost boyish. The impression of age was based on no tangible evidence, it came from the abstract facts of the man, from what he had endured and survived, which was far beyond that of ordinary men. He had lived naked and tensely, and something of all this, soldered in his eyes, vibrated in his voice and seemed forever a whisper on his lips.

It was two in the morning when the dancers, bent on getting something to eat, adjourned the dancing for half an hour. And it was at this moment that Jack Kearns suggested poker. Jack Kearns was a big, bluff-featured man, who, along with Bettles, had made the disastrous attempt to found a post on the head-reaches of the Koyukuk, on the inside the Arctic circle. After that, Kearns had fallen back on his heels at Forty Mile and Sixty Mile and changed the direction of his ventures by sending out to the states for a small steamer, a mail and a river steamer. Jack Kearns, a mail and a river steamer, Dan MacDonald and Hal Campbell (who had made a strike on Moosehide) had made a strike on Moosehide, but three of whom were not dancing because there were not girls enough to go around, inclined to the suggestion. They were looking for a fifth man when Burning Daylight emerged from the rear room, the Virgin on his arm, the train of dancers in his wake. In response to the call of the poker-players, he came over to their table in the corner.

"Want to sit in," said Campbell. "How's your luck?" Burning Daylight answered with enthusiasm, and at the same time felt the Virgin press his arm warningly. She wanted him for the dancing. "I sure got my luck with me, but I'd sooner dance. I ain't hankerin' to take the money away from you all."

Nobody urged. They took his refusal as final, and the Virgin was pressing his arm to turn him away in pursuit of the supper-seekers, when he experienced a change of heart. It was not that he did not want to dance, but that he wanted to have her; but that instant pressure on his arm put his free hand-cup in revolt. The thought in his mind was that he did not want any woman running him. Himself a favorite with women, nevertheless they did not bug with him. They were toys, playthings, part of the relaxation from the bigger game of life. He must women along with the whiskey and gambling, and from observation he had found that it was far easier to break away from the drink and the cards than from a woman once the man was properly entangled. He resisted the pull on his arm, and said: "I sort of feel a hankerin' to give you all a flutter."

Tact and sympathy strove with him, and he smiled with his eyes into the Virgin's eyes as he said: "You all go and get some grub. I'll be right back."

The onlookers became quiet. The men farther away ceased talking and moved over to the table. The players deserted the other games, and the dancing-floor was forsaken, so that all stood at last, five or six and more in a compact and silent group, around the poker table. The high betting went on, with the draw not in sight. Kearns had dealt, and French Louis had opened the pot with one marker. In his case one hundred dollars, and tumbled in five hundred dollars, and was letting him in easy. MacDonald, glancing again at his hand, put in a thousand in markers. Kearns, debating a long time over his hand, finally "saw." It then cost French Louis nine hundred to remain in the game, which he contributed after a similar debate. It cost Campbell like-wise nine hundred to remain and draw cards, but to the surprise of all he saw the nine hundred and raised another thousand.

"You all are on the grade at last," Harish remarked, as he saw the fifteen hundred and raised a thousand in turn. "Hello, breakfast's sure on up this divide, and you all had best look out for bustin' harness." "Me for that same lady," accompanied MacDonald's markers for two thousand and for an additional thousand-dollar raise.

"I ain't got no more markers," Kearns remarked plaintively. "We'd best begin to O. U. S." "Glad you're going to stay," was MacDonald's cordial response. "I ain't stayed yet. I've got a thousand in already. How's it stand now?" "I'll cost you three thousand for a look in, but nobody will stop you from raising."

TAFT IS WINNER ROOSEVELT GETS ONLY THE 7 OF 90 DELEGATES ON WHICH THERE WAS NO CONTEST.

HIS AIDS TO APPEAL TO DIX
Will Ask New Primary Because of Failure to Deliver Adequate Number of Ballots—President Victor at Indiana Convention.

New York, March 28.—Delegates to the Republican national convention favoring the nomination of Theodore Roosevelt were defeated in every district where they opposed candidates designated by the regular Republican organization and claimed by the followers of President Taft. The Taft campaign managers declared at least $3 of New York's 90 delegates would go to Chicago favoring the president's nomination. This estimate included the four delegates-at-large to be chosen at the state convention April 9.

The remaining seven delegates were designated by the regular district organization, but are conceded to Colonel Roosevelt. Taft Wins by More Than 2 to 1. Colonel Roosevelt lost the only two fights his supporters made "against" the returns from New York city and Long Island gave his opponents a plurality averaging more than 2 to 1.

Colonel Roosevelt's supporters now are expected to concentrate their attention on the state convention in an effort to prevent the Taft and Roosevelt delegates from being sent to Chicago on an instructed delegation. The Taft delegates were given specific instructions of the delegates at the time they were elected. The leaders concede that the action of the New York delegation will be influenced by the results in other states that hold primaries or conventions during the interval before the New York convention.

They Will Appeal to Dix. Roosevelt campaign managers confined their statements to declarations regarding the confusion that reigned in New York city over the failure to deliver an adequate number of ballots. Former Judge Charles H. Duell, chairman of the Roosevelt Citizens' committee, and Chairman Knickerbocker of the county committee both declared they would appeal to Governor Dix for a second primary in New York city.

Roosevelt partisans charged the failure to provide ballots in all districts to the machinations of their opponents. The organization met on the other hand with the printers, attributing the situation to the court action brought by the Roosevelt forces in their unsuccessful attempt to have the names of their delegates printed at the head of the ticket. This, the printers say, delayed their work in making the tickets, and the court action, they say, was the cause of the delay.

New Primary Would Cost $150,000. A new primary in New York city, it is estimated, would cost something like $150,000, since ballots costing $70,000 would have to be reprinted and the whole election machinery revised. Taft Wins in Indiana. Indianapolis, Ind., March 28.—President Taft won a victory in Indiana when the Indiana Republican state convention enthusiastically endorsed his administration, declared for his re-nomination and re-election and instructed the delegates at large from this state to vote for Mr. Taft at the national convention at Chicago.

National Committeeman Harry S. New, former Vice-President Charles W. Fairbanks, James E. Watson and Joseph D. Oliver were elected delegates. The Taft faction had a majority of 10 over the supporters of Colonel Roosevelt. Allen Outlaws Hemmed In. Sharpshooters Sent to Capture Three Virginians at Bay in Blue Ridge. Hillsville, Va., March 28.—What the search leaders believe will be the final movement against the "Allens" was undertaken at dawn by a picked squad of "sharpshooters" detectives. Sidna and Friel Allen and Wesley Edwards, the three men still at large, were charged with the Carroll county murders, are supposed to be cornered in a wild section of the Blue Ridge, 20 miles from this place and near the North Carolina line.

With guards at every known pass that could furnish an avenue of escape for the fugitives, the detectives were in this section determined to capture or kill the outlaws before coming out again. Detective Thomas L. Fels, in charge of the searchers, is confident the three men have been trapped this time. He admits, however, he has given up hope of taking the Swanson Allens, who he believes to be hundreds of miles away.

Fire Razes Buffalo School. All Children Are Believed to Have Escaped the Flames in Large Institution. Buffalo, N. A miser doesn't even enjoy a joke at his own expense. Marriage is about the only thing that can convince an old bachelor that he doesn't know it all. When a man bets and loses his money he attributes it to ill luck, but when he wins he thinks it due to his smartness. When a girl tells a man how her mother tells her she used to act when she was a baby she considers it makes them as good as engaged. It isn't a man's love for flowers that makes him throw bouquets at himself. Ever notice how deaf people manage to hear the things they shouldn't?

Majority Report of Exonerated Passes Senate, 40 to 34.
LA FOLLETTE VOTE OPPOSES

Washington, D. C.—The senate, by a vote of 46 to 31, approved the majority report of the committee on privileges and elections, exonerating Senator Stephenson of all charges of bribery and corruption in his election to that body. On the previous day the senate had voted down the Jones resolution, calling for the unseating of Senator Stephenson.

Sixteen republicans and eighteen democrats voted against Senator Stephenson. Twenty-two democrats and twenty-eight republicans voted for him. Up to the last moment the attitude of the senate remained in doubt. Both sides worked strenuously throughout the afternoon gathering all their forces and at times the anti-Stephenson senators claimed to have a majority. Even Senator La Follette, who had not been in the chamber for several weeks, came in at the last moment to cast his vote against his colleague.

All during the progress of roll call votes in direct opposition to the Heyburn motion tied votes upon which success of the Stephenson fight depended three times. Toward the end, however, the Stephenson forces forged ahead, securing the votes of senators arriving after roll call was begun by a majority of 6.

The galleries burst into applause when Vice President Sherman announced the result. This was promptly suppressed, the vice president rapping for order and calling attention to the rule of the senate forbidding all demonstrations of approval or disapproval. Senator Stephenson, who has followed the debate closely, remained in the cloak room while the voting was in progress. After the result was announced, the aged senator received the many congratulations of many friends.

"I am glad the long fight is over," he said, apparently quite calm and showing no traces of any excitement, although he was visibly elated with the result. "It has lasted three and a half years. And I can now say as I have always said, that I did not spend a dollar of money dishonestly." The final ballot was: FOR STEPHENSON. Bradley, Brandegee, Briggs, Burnham, Burton, Carlisle, W. C. Crane, Curtis, Dillingham, Dupont, Gamble, Heyburn, Lippitt, Lodge, Lorimer, McCumber, McLean, Nixon, Oliver, Page, Penrose, Perkins, Richardson, Root, Smoot, Sutherland, Warren and Wetmore, republicans.

READY TO BUILD BIG DAM
Enormous Power Will Be Developed on Chippewa River—Purpose as Yet Unknown. Courderay.—Engineers have almost completed their survey and work will soon start on a great dam half a mile below the junction of the east and west forks of the Chippewa river. The structure will be 32 feet high, and at the ends of the concrete work, the earth fillings will be 40 feet wide at the top. The power stored up will be enormous, but for what purpose it will be used is not yet known. Engineers state that Chief Lake, fourteen miles above the dam in the reservation, will be raised 16 feet. Several thousand acres of land, including a number of improved farms, will be flooded.

Varsity Carnival May 24-25. Madison.—May 24 and 25 are the dates set for the annual spring carnival to be held at the university during interscholastic week.

Boxing Barred at Kenosha. Kenosha.—Sheriff Stahl amplified his recent fight order when he declared that not only would outside promoters be barred from pulling off boxing contests in the city, but that the same rule would apply to local clubs. To Extend Traction Line. Manitowish.—The Manitowish and Northern Traction company will extend its lines this spring on the west side to the Holy Family hospital. Boy Shoots Stepmother. Wausau.—John Hoffman, a youth of 19, shot his stepmother, Mrs. Andrew, three times. According to the physicians she will recover. After the shooting, provoked, it is thought, by an order his mother had given him, the boy disappeared. Racine Accepts Library. Red Cedar for Buildings

Some of This Excellent Material is Estimated to Be Nearly Four Thousand Years Old. It will surprise many to know that they have in their homes material estimated to be 4,000 years old. If the shingles or interior finish is red cedar or if you have a red cedar chest it is possible that the wood antedates the history of this country by thousands of years, says the Cleveland Leader. A Cleveland man is credited with bringing the first red cedar into this section. W. A. Geist, on a western trip several years ago, was attracted by the red cedar forests at Port Angeles, Wash. He established a mill there and began shipping the cedar to the eastern market. Formerly the cedar was used in great quantities, but it is the claim of Mr. Geist that the product from the Pacific coast is growing in favor and the demand for it is increasing. It is a most durable wood and is a home guarantee that mother-in-law and other troublesome insects will not enter. It is used for window-sills, mantels, cupboards, cabinets and especially for chests in which to store furs and clothing. Mr. Geist exhibits a quantity of red cedar cut from a tree he estimates to be at least 2,700 years of age. Three large cedars were found growing from a fallen log which was five and one-half feet in diameter. The largest of the three trees growing from the fallen tree was ten and one-half feet in diameter. By counting the rings in both trees he estimated that the fallen tree was still sound, its bearing its four thousandth birthday. Mr. Geist is an expert upon red cedar and goes in for the history of the wonderful trees of Washington and other coast states as a biographer. "Their ages," he says, "gathered up would date upon the life of some famous ship or a great historical event, which goes back to the misty ages and something like reverence grows within the listener for this venerable work of nature. Unquestionably the red cedar is the oldest material used in the construction of the home and few materials will wear it. It is being nearly indestructible except by fire.

THIS IS CERTAIN

The Proof That Grand Rapids Readers Cannot Deny.

What could furnish stronger evidence of the efficiency of any remedy than the test of time? Thousands of people testify that Doan's Kidney Pills cure permanently.

Home endorsement should prove undoubtedly the merit of this remedy. Years ago your friend and neighbors testified to the relief they had derived from the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. They now confirm their testimonials.

They say time has completed the test. Thomas Barr, 428 Eighth St., N. Grand Rapids, Wis., says: "I am glad to confirm the public statement I gave in 1907, recommending Doan's Kidney Pills. My back ached severely and I was subject to dull, nagging pains across my loins. The secretions from my kidneys deposited sediment and were highly colored. Doan's Kidney Pills, which I procured at John E. Daly's Drug Store, took effect on my trouble as soon as I began their use and it was not long before all symptoms of my complaint disappeared."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-McLure Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

One of them was the flag flown by Commodore Perry at the battle of Lake Erie. It is a blue flag with these words written on it: "Don't give up the ship." The money, specie value, $44,737.50 was asked. Congress refused to pay the certificates should be paid with interest to a very young descendant of Randall, who died in 1790. He left a son, William, who, when he was an old man, advertised for the lost certificates and memorialized congress for their payment. The lawmakers refused to pay any attention to the matter. Happiness Postponed.
An awkward predicament, in which a sailor bridegroom and his bride were placed in St. Mary Major's church, Exeter, Devonshire, England, recently, caused the postponement of their wedding. The bans had been duly called at the church, but when the parties presented themselves at the altar the bridegroom, who had been recently paid off from his ship at Portsmouth, was unable to produce the necessary permission from his commanding officer. The bride swooned, and eventually returned home, while the bridegroom left for Plymouth to get the required document.
